

Who, Norms and How

The OSM group

October 13, 2015

Who we are

The Ocean Surface Masters is a research group at the University of Gothenburg, Department of marine sciences. Most of us are master students in physical oceanography.

Norms we stick to

- a) When we meet we start with a round. We all get a chance to express how we feel. The purpose is to let us focus on work and to avoid misconceptions about each other.
- b) We discuss and decide in advance the authorship of reports to be written.
- c) We strive for a balance between effort and reward.

How we do ocean science

- a) We have fun. Ambitious people as ourselves must be reminded that we really do ocean science for pleasure. When we enjoy ourselves we produce good science.
- b) We publish. The quality of our work can only be measured by others.
- c) We publish pretty. We use \LaTeX and figures with vector graphics. When suitable we use interactive formats such as html and javascript.